Auger continues to produce films, television series and documentaries aiming to advance the status and expose the stereotyping of his people.

Windcatcher: The Story of Sacajawea is an epic film now in development by Spirit Wind Films. The Windcatcher project is the story of Lewis and Clark Expedition from Sacajawae's perspective which for the first time is from an Indigenous woman's perspective and has never been done before in Hollywood. Auger plays Chief Cameahwait.

Auger has been on his spiritual journey for over 20 years. It has taught him that life is not what it seems in the physical world. That humanity needs to come together in unity and healing for the children and their children's children. That the division being created by the human being is only going to lead to more chaos, confusion and mayhem in life for our children and those yet to be born.
